INTRODUCTION

In education, English has been chosen as one of the subjects that should be mastered by the students, in junior high school, senior high school, and university level. In Indonesia, teaching English to students focuses on four basic skills, namely; listening, reading, speaking and writing. In addition, it is learned about English components; vocabulary, structure, and pronunciation in integrated way as well.

Reading is the process of constructing meaning from written texts. It is a complex skill requiring the coordination of a number of interrelated sources of information. By knowing how to comprehend a passage in reading, the students will get information in the passage.

Reading is also something crucial and indispensable for the students because the success of their study depends on the greater part of their ability to read. According to Irianti (2011:9), reading is an act of communication in which information is transferred from a transmitter to a receiver. If their reading skill is poor, they are very likely to fail in their study or at least they will have difficulty in making progress. On the other hand, if they have a good ability in reading, they will have a better chance to succeed in their study. In fact, many students get problems in comprehending the reading, such as getting the general information and specific information.

On the preliminary observation, the researcher found that the second grade students of SMA YPTB (Yayasan Pendidikan Tanjung Balaesang) Ketong still find difficulties in reading comprehension. Firstly, the students find difficulty in getting message from the reading text. Secondly, the students find difficulty to understand the teacher’s explanation and the thirdly, the students have insufficient vocabulary.

Scope of the Research

The scope of this research is the difficulties encountered by the second grade students of SMA YPTB Ketong in Reading Comprehension.

According to Elizabeth (2008:1-2), reading is the process of constructing meaning from print and from other symbol. Reading involves not just the print and the illustrations, but also readers bringing to the process their knowledge of the world and their past experiences. The reading process does not involve reading every single letter and that is why proofreading is so difficult: when you are very familiar with the ideas you hardly need to read the words at all.

Nuttal (1996:11) argues that he has to guess and shape the text accordingly, but as he never knows who the readers will be, he will never completely succeed. Reading is interactive process as conversation because both reader and writer depend on each other.

The interaction is complicated by the fact that the writer is absent at the time of reading; so he gets no feedback and cannot know what parts of her text will cause misunderstanding. Reading is seen as selective process taking place between the reader and the text, in which background knowledge and several of language interacts with information in the text to contribute to text comprehension.
Based on explanation previously, it can be concluded that reading means a process between the readers to understanding the messaging that is written from the text.
